

INTRODUCTION: 15334 is a polymict breccia with the macroscopic properties of a regolith breccia (Fig. 1). It has two small glass surface patches. Zap pits are not obvious anywhere. The sample was subdivided (Figs. 1, 2) but the only split was (unproductively) allocated, and returned. The sample was collected as part of the rake sample from the north-east rim of Spur Crater.

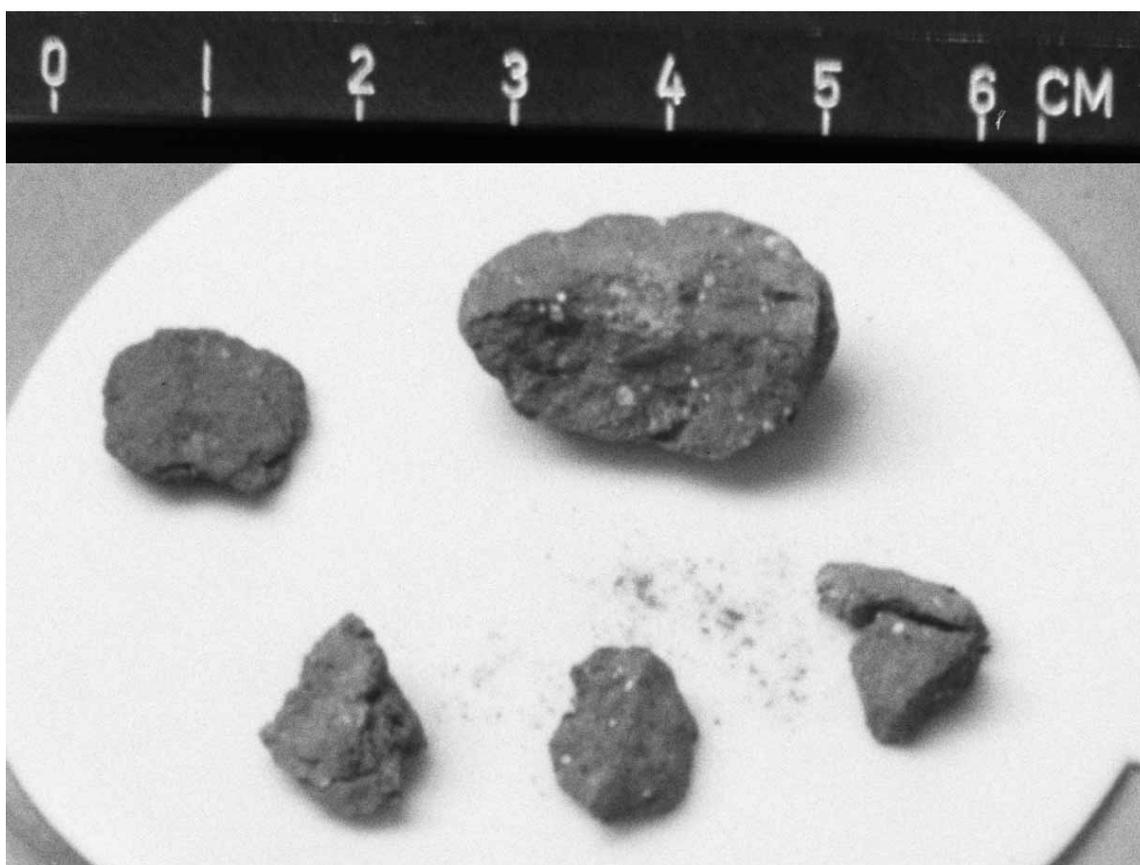

Figure 1. Post-split view of 15334. S-71-57233

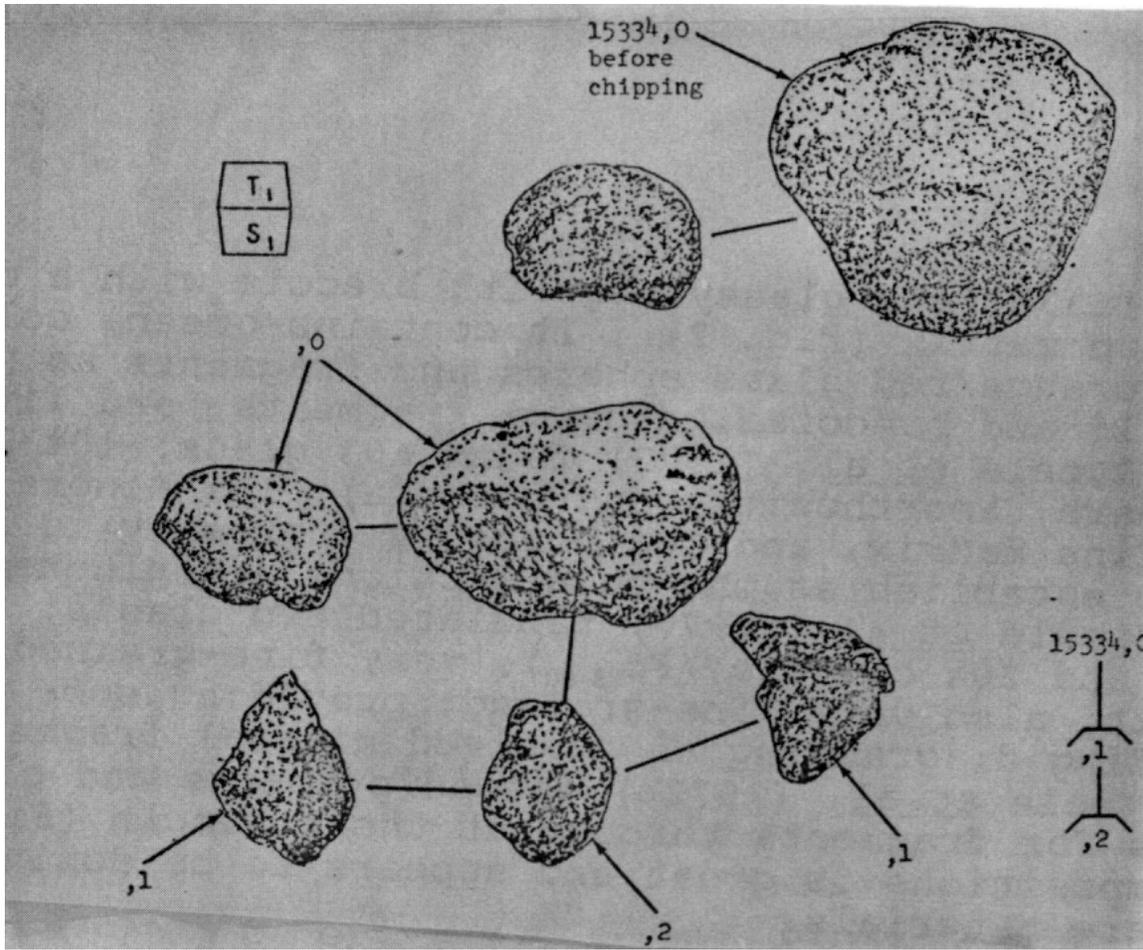

Figure 2. Chipping of 15334.